

MY BODY IS SPECIAL SING-A-LONG SONGS Tips For Adults

We encourage you to teach your child the songs My Body Belongs to Me and Touches. It's a fun, upbeat way to educate him or her about personal safety.

Talking to your child about safe and unsafe touching is an important step in protecting them from sexual abuse. Sadly, all children are at risk of being sexually abused, and over 90% of child victims are abused by someone they know. Many children do not report the abuse because they are frightened into keeping the abuse a secret. However, if a child has been educated about unsafe, secret touching they are much more likely to tell a trusted adult if sexually abused.

"My Body Belongs to Me"

- Read the lyrics and sing the song together. You can create hand gestures to go along with the lyrics too. Keep it a positive experience.
- Talk about body ownership. For example, ask your child, "Who does your tummy belong to?" Answer: ME! Continue asking about different body parts, including their private parts. Name them or say "the parts covered by your bathing suit." Wrap up by saying, "That's right! Your body belongs to you!"

"Touches"

- Read the lyrics and sing the song together. Make it fun by clapping your hands and stomping your feet to the song.
- Start the conversation about touching. For example, ask your child, "Can you think of some good touches (holding hands with dad, hugging mommy, petting a dog)?" Then ask, "Can you think of some bad touches (being hit, being pushed down)?
- Explain secret touching. "Secret touching is when someone touches your private parts (or vagina, bottom or penis) and tells you to keep it a secret." Help your child distinguish between good and bad secrets. "Good secrets are fun and safe, like a surprise birthday party. Bad secrets are about someone getting hurt or about touching private parts."
- Explain what to do if secret touching happens. "If secret touching happens to you, get away as soon as you can and tell a grown up you can trust like me." Remind your child that secret touching is never their fault.
- End on an upbeat note. For example, sing the songs once more then suggest the child give a favorite stuffed animal a good touch like a high-five.

For more educational materials visit the Sex Abuse Treatment Center website and click on Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Toolkit. www.satchawaii.com

These songs are part of the "My Body is Special" curriculum created by the Sex Abuse Treatment Center and approved by the Department of Education. For more information call SATC at 535-7600.

My Body Belongs To Me

* Sing to the tune of "Head, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes" *

My body belongs just to me, just to me

Some parts of my body you can see, you can see

Like my arms, my legs my tummy and my nose

But my private parts belong just to me, just to me

Touches

* Sing to the tune of "If You're Happy & You Know It" *

If good touches make you smile, clap your hands If good touches make you smile, clap your hands If good touches make you smile, smile like a crocodile If good touches make you smile, clap your hands

If bad touches make you frown, stomp your feet If bad touches make you frown, stomp your feet If bad touches make you frown, then don't hang around If bad touches make you frown, stomp your feet

If you get a secret touch, get away If you get a secret touch, get away If you get a secret touch, tell a grown-up you can trust If you get a secret touch, get away